Pre Letter Work—Why You?

- Only write letters for students to whom you can provide a strong letter of recommendation.
- If the student has not done so, ask them what part of their story do they want you to emphasize in the letter: research, leadership, creativity?

Actual Letter

- Include the name of the fellowship.
- Introduce yourself. What expertise do you have that enables you to make a strong recommendation?
- Provide context. How does this student compare to you at this stage in your career or to others you have mentored, seen in the department, etc...
- Comment on the student's accomplishments.
- Illustrate how the student's achievements and/or goals align with the fellowship/opportunity.
- Tell a personal story of how the student has impressed you or gone above and beyond what was required or expected.
- It is okay to bring up negatives or short comments in the student's record. However, they should only be included to emphasize the student's accomplishments in light of the shortcomings.
- Structurally, provide at least two pages but no more than 3 single-spaced pages.
- End the recommendation on a strong note: this student is the perfect candidate.

Please contact OGFA if we can be of assistance to you. We are happy to answer questions or provide feedback. You can email us at ogfa-info@fsu.edu or call 850-645-0850
