Higher Education Research Experience (HERE) Program
Deadline: Rolling
The Oak Ridge National Laboratory HERE program provides opportunities for current graduate students to participate in research and related technical activities under the mentorship of world-class scientists. Graduate students in all STEM fields may apply for full-time or part-time experiences of flexible duration. Participants receive a bi-weekly stipend and a housing allowance. Program requirements may include attending enrichment and professional development activities as well as the development and presentation of a deliverable such as a written research report, research poster, or formal presentation.

Advanced Short-Term Research Opportunity (ASTRO) Program
Deadline: Rolling
The Oak Ridge National Laboratory's highly selective ASTRO program offers challenging short-term research opportunities to students enrolled in Master's or Doctoral programs or to those holding a Master's degree in any of the STEM disciplines. Participants conduct research in one of the laboratory's current programs with a senior mentor for 3 to 12 months and receive a monthly stipend. Participants may also attend professional development events and request funding for relocation, conference travel, and publication fees.

Computational Science & Technology Advanced Research Studies (C-STARS) Program
Deadline: Rolling
This paid research opportunity is open to all current graduate students with at least a 3.5 GPA who have received a Master's degree within the past five years. Participants spend usually 12 months at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory (ORNL) in Oak Ridge, Tennessee conducting computational research in areas that support ORNL missions. As of Spring/Summer 2019, there are current openings in software engineering, geographic information systems, and life and medical sciences database research. Participants have access to state-of-the-art laboratory equipment, professional development activities, presentation opportunities, and a large professional network. Participants receive a bi-weekly stipend, housing or travel reimbursements, conference travel costs, and any publication-related fees. Graduate students may participate in part-time or full-time appointments.
